

Deposition Testimony

During the trial, you have heard reference to the terms "examination under oath" and "deposition." As it applies in this case, these terms mean sworn testimony, under oath, given by a witness before this trial began. To the extent that you have heard reference to and quotations from a "deposition" or "examination under oath," you may give it the same credibility or weight as live witness testimony, if any, as you think it may deserve.
